Dispoſe already of th' untaken ſpoil.
 Oth'erwiſe the whole buſineſs had miſcarried, and Jeruſalem remain'd untaken.
 A thouſand ſchemes the monarch's mind employ;
 Elate in thought, he ſacks untaken Troy.
 2. UNTAKEN up. Not filled.
 The narrow limits of this diſcourſe, will leave no more room untaken up by heaven.
 UNTAKEN of. adj. Not mentioned in the world.
 Spread thy cloſe curtain, love-performing night,
 That the runaway's eyes may wink, and Romeo leap to theſe arms, untalk'd of and unſeen.
 No happineſs can be, where is no reſt.
 Th' unknown, untalk'd of man is only bleſt.
 UNTAKEN able. adj. Not to be tamed; not to be ſubdued.
 Gold is ſo untamable by the fire, that after many meltings and violent heats, it does ſcarce diminiſh.
 He is ſwifter than any other bull, and untamable.
 UNTAMABLE adj. Not ſubdued; not ſuppreſſed.
 A people very ſtubborn and untamed; or, if ever tamed, yet lately have quite ſhooken off their yoke, and broken the bonds of their obedience.
 What death has heav'n deſign'd,
 For ſo untam'd, ſo turbulent a mind!
 Man alone acts more contrary to nature, than the wild and moſt untamed part of the creation.
 To UNTANGLE v. a. To looſe from intricacy or convolution.
 O time, thou muſt untangle this, not I;
 It is too hard a knot for me t'untie.
 This is that very Mab,
 That cakes the dſlocks, in ſoft, ſluttish hairs,
 Which, once untangled, much miſfortune bodes.
 I'll give thee up my bow and dart;
 Untangle but this cruel chain,
 And freely let me fly again.
 UNTASTED adj. Not taſted; not tried by the palate.
 The tall ſtag reſolves to try
 The combat next; but if the cry
 Invades again his trembling ear,
 He ſtraight reſumes his wonted care;
 Leaves the untasted ſpring behind,
 And, wing'd with fear, outſtarts the wind.
 A new repaſt, or an untasted ſpring,
 Bleſſes his ſtars, and thinks it luxury.
 UNTASTING adj.
 1. Not perceiving any taſte.
 Cydonian oil,
 Whole balmy juice glides o'er th' untasting tongue.
 2. Not trying by the palate.
 UNTAUGHT adj.
 1. Uninſtructed; uneducated; ignorant; unlettered.
 A lie is continually in the mouth of the untaught.
 Taught, or untaught, the dunce is ſtill the ſame;
 Yet ſtill the wretched maſter bears the blame.
 On ev'ry thorn delightful wiſdom grows,
 In ev'ry ſtream a ſweet inſtruction flows;
 But ſome untaught o'erhear the whiſp'ring rill,
 In ſpite of ſacred leiſure, blockheads ſtill.
 2. Debar'd from inſtruction.
 He, that from a child untaught, or a wild inhabitant of the woods, will expect principles of ſciences, will find himſelf miſtaken.
 3. Unſkilled; new; not having uſe or practice.
 Suſſolk's imperial tongue is ſtern and rough,
 Uſ'd to command, untought to plead for favour.
 To UNTAUGHT v. a. To make to quit, or forget what has been inſtructed.
 That elder berries are poiſon, as we are taught by tradition, experience will untouch us.
 Their cuſtoms are by nature wrought;
 But we, by art, untouch what nature taught.

 Caſſibelan granted Rome a tribute,
 Yearly three thouſand pounds; which by thee lately is left untender'd.
 To UNTENT v. a. To bring out of a tent.
 Will he not, upon our fair requeſt,
 Untent his perſon, and ſhare the air with us?
 UNTENTED adj. [from tent.] Having no medicaments applied.
 Blasts and fogs upon thee!
 Th' untented woundings of a father's curſe
 Pierce every fence about thee!
 UNTRIFIED adj. Not affrighted; not ſtruck with fear.
 Among innumerable falſe, unmov'd,
 Unhaken, unſeduc'd, unturfi'd,
 To ſuccour the diſtreſs; to give help
 To an afflicted mother,
 Unbride'd by love, unturfi'd by threats;
 Theſe are exploits worthy Achilles' ſon.
 UNTHANKED adj.
 1. Not repaid with acknowledgment of a kindneſs.
 If all the world
 Should in a pet of temperance feed on pulſe,
 Drink the clear ſteam, and nothing wear but freeze,
 Th' all-giver wou'd be unthank'd, wou'd be unprais'd.
 Their batter'd admiral too ſoon withdrew,
 Unthank'd by ours for his unſiniſh'd fight.
 2. Not received with thankſulneſs.
 Forc'd from her preſence, and condemn'd to live:
 Unwelcome freedom, and unthank'd reprieve.
 UNTHANKFUL adj. Ungrateful; returning no acknowledgment for good received.
 The calling away of things profitable for ſuſtenance, is an unthankful abuſe of the fruits.
 He is kind to the unthankful.
 They which he created, were unthankful unto him which prepared life for them.
 If you reckon that for evil, you are unthankful for the bleſſing.
 The bare ſuppoſal of one petty loſs, makes us unthankful for all that's left.
 UNTHANKFULLY adv. Without thanks; without gratitude.
 I judg'd it requiſite to ſay ſomething, to prevent my being thought to have unthankfully taken one of the chief paſſages of my diſcourſe from a book, to which I was utterly a ſtranger.
 UNTHANKFULNESS n. f. Neglect or omiſſion of acknowledgment for good received; want of ſenſe of benefits; ingratitude.
 Thou diſt in thine unthankfulneſs; and thine ignorance makes thee away.
 Immoderate favours breed fiſt unthankfulneſs, and afterwards hate.
 The unthankful ſtand reckon'd among the moſt enormous ſinners, which evinces the virtue oppoſite to unthankfulneſs, to bear the ſame place in the rank of duties.
 UNTHAWED adj. Not diſſolved after froſt.
 Your wine lock'd up,
 Or fiſh deny'd, the river yet unthaw'd.
 To UNTHINK v. a. To recal, or diſmiſs a thought.
 Unthink your ſpeaking, and ſay ſo no more.
 UNTHINKING adj. Thoughtleſs; not given to reflection.
 Grey-headed infant! and in vain grown old;
 Art thou to learn, that in another's gold
 Lie charms reſiſtleſs! that all laugh to find
 Unthinking plainneſs ſo o'erſpread thy mind.
 An effectual remedy for the wandering of thoughts who ever ſhall propoſe, would do great ſervice to the ſtudioſus, and perhaps help unthinking men to become thinking.
 The unthinking part contract an unreaſonable averſion to that eccleſiaſtical conſtitution.
 With earneſt eyes, and round unthinking faces,
 He fiſt the ſnuſt-box open'd, then the cal.
 UNTHORNY adj. Not obſtructed by prickles.

To UNTHREAD v. a. To looſe.
 He with his bare wand can unthread thy joints,
 And crumble all thy ſineſs.
 UNTHREATHENED adj. Not menaced.
 Sir John Hotham was unreproached, and unthreathen'd, by any language of mine.
 UNTHRIFT n. f. An extravagant; a prodigal.
 My rights and royalties
 Pluckt from my arms perforce, and giv'n away
 To upſtart unthrifts.
 The curious unthrif makes his cloaths too wide,
 And ſpares himſelf, but would his taylor chide.
 Yet nothing fill; then poor and naked come;
 Thy father will receive his unthrif home,
 And thy bleſt Saviour's blood diſcharge the mighty ſum.
 UNTHRIFTY adj. Profuſe; waſteful; prodigal; extravagant.
 In ſuch a night,
 Did Jeſſica ſteal from the wealthy Jew,
 And, with an unthrif love, did run from Venice.
 UNTHRIFTILY adv. Without frugality.
 Our attainments cannot be overlarge, and yet we manage a narrow fortune very unthriftilly.
 UNTHRIFTESS n. f. Waſte; prodigality; profuſion.
 The third fort are the poor by idleneſs or unthrifteſs, as riotous ſpenders, vagabonds, loiterers.

 UNTHRIFTY adj.
 1. Prodigal; profuſe; laſh; waſteful.
 The cattle I found of good ſtrength, having a great mote round about it; the work of a noble gentleman, of whole unthrif ſon he had bought it.
 Can no man tell me of my unthrif ſon?
 Our abſence makes us unthrif to our knowledge.
 2. Not eaſily made to thrive or fatten.
 Grains given to a hide-bound or unthrif horſe, recover him.
 UNTHRIVING adj. Not thriving; not proſpering; not growing rich.
 Let all who thus unhappily employ their inventive faculty, conſider, how unthriving a trade it is finally like to prove, that their falſe accuſations of others will rebound in true ones on themſelves.
 To UNTHROW v. a. To pull down from a throne.
 Him to unthroned, we then
 May hope, when overlaſting fate ſhall yield
 To ſickle chance, and chaos judge the triſtle.
 To UNTIE v. a.
 1. To unbind; to free from bonds.
 Though you untie the winds, and let them fight
 Againſt the churches; though the veſty waves
 Confound and ſwallow navigation up.
 2. To looſen from convolution or knot.
 All that of myſelf is mine,
 Lovely Amoret, is thine;
 Sacharifa's captive ſain
 Would untie his iron chain;
 And thoſe ſcorching beams to ſhun,
 To thy gentle ſhadow run.
 The chain I'll in return untie,
 And freely thou again ſhalt fly.
 The fury heard; while on Cocytus' brink,
 Her ſhakes untied, ſulphureous waters drink.
 3. To ſet free from any obſtruction.
 All the evils of an untied tongue, we put upon the accounts of drunkenneſs.
 4. To reſolve; to clear.
 They quicken doth, perplexities untie;
 Make roughneſs ſmooth, and hardneſs mollifie.
 A little more ſtudy will ſolve thoſe difficulties, untie the knot, and make your doubts vaniſh.
 UNTIED adj.
 1. Not bound; not gathered in a knot.
 Her hair
 Unty'd, and ignorant of artful aid,
 A-down her ſhoulders looſely lay diſplay'd.
 2. Not faſtened by any binding, or knot.
 Your hoſe ſhould be ungartered, your ſhoe untied, and every thing about you demonſtrating a careleſs deſolation.
 UNTIE adv.
 1. To the time that.
 Treafons are aſted,
 As ſoon as thought; though they are never believ'd
 Until they come to act.
 2. To the place that.
 In open proſpect nothing bounds our eye,
 Until the earth ſeems join'd unto the ſky.
 UNTIE prep. To. Uſed of time. The other uſe is obſolete.

So ſoon as he from far deſcry'd
 Thoſe glit'ring arms, that heaven with light did fill,
 Herous'd himſelf full blithe, and haſten'd them untill.
 UNTILLED adj. Not cultivated.
 The glebe untill'd, might plenteous crops have born;
 Rich fruits and flow'rs, without the gard'ner's pains,
 Might ev'ry hill have crown'd, have honour'd all the plains.
 Lands lain long untill'd, contract a ſour juice, which cauſes the land to run to unprofitable trumpery.
 The ſoil untill'd, a ready harveſt yields;
 With wheat and barley wave the golden fields.
 UNTIMBERED adj. Not furniſhed with timber; weak.
 Where's then the faucy boat,
 Whoſe weak untimber'd ſides but even now
 Co-ral'd greatneſs; or to harbour fled,
 Or made a toaſt for Neptune?
 UNTIMELY adj. Happening before the natural time.
 Boundleſs intemperance hath been
 Th' untimely emptying of the happy throne.
 Matrons and maids
 With tears lament the knight's untimely fate.
 Such were the notes thy once-lov'd poet ſung,
 'Till death untimely ſtopp'd his tuneful tongue.
 Oh juſt beheld and loſt!
 UNTIMELY adv. Before the natural time.
 He only fair, and what he fair hath made;
 All other fair, like flowers untimely fade.
 If ever he have child, abortive be it;
 Prodigious and untimely brought to light.
 Butchers, and villains!
 How ſweet a plant have you untimely cropt?
 Call up our friends,
 And let them know what we mean to do,
 And what's untimely done.
 Why came I ſo untimely forth
 Into a world, which, wanting thee,
 Could entertain us with no worth?
 UNTINGED adj.
 1. Not ſtained; not diſcoloured.
 It appears what beams are untined, and which paint the primary, or ſecondary iris.

 UNTRABLE adj. Indefatigable; unwearied.
 A moſt incomparable man, breath'd as it were
 To an untrable and continue goodneſs.
 UNTRIED adj. Not made weary.
 Hath he ſo long held out with me untir'd,
 And ſtops he now for breath?
 See great Marcellus! how untir'd in toils,
 He moves with manly grace, how rich with regal ſpoils!
 UNTITLED adj. [un and title.] Having no title.
 O nation miſerable!
 With an untitled tyrant, bloody ſcepter'd;
 When ſhalt thou ſee thy wholeſome days again?
 UNTO prep. [It was the old word for to; now obſolete.] To.
 O continue thy loving kindneſs unto them.
 It was their hurt untuly to attribute ſuch great power unto falſe gods.
 She, by her wicked arts, and wily ſkill,
 Unawares me wrought unto her wicked will.
 The uſe of the navel is to continue the infant unto the mother, and by the veſſels thereof convey its ſuſtention.
 Children permitted the freedom of both hands, often confine unto the left.
 Me, when the cold Digentian ſtream revives,
 What does my friend believe I think or aſk?
 Let me yet leſs poſſeſs, ſo I may live,
 Whate'er of life remains unto myſelf.
 UNTO'LD adj.
 1. Not related.
 Better a thouſand ſuch as I,
 Their grief untold, ſhould pine and die;
 Than her bright morning, overcaſt
 With ſullen clouds, ſhould be defac'd.
 2. Not revealed.
 Characters where obſcene words are very indecent to be heard: for that reaſon, ſuch a tale ſhall be left untold by me.
 UNTOUCHED adj.
 1. Not touched; not reached.
 Achilles, though dipt in Styx, yet having his heel untouched by that water, was ſlain in that part.
 Three men paſſed through a fiery furnace untouched, unſinged.
 2. Not moved; not affected.
 They, like perſons wholly untouched with his agonies, and unmoved with his paſſionate intreaties, ſleep away all concern for him or themſelves.
